something very ignoble about the conduct that produced it.

PRIDE IN THE SPEAKER

(Ms. DUNN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, I must say, this is a fascinating debate. Finally we have somebody in this political maelstrom who does the right thing, who goes above and beyond fairness and does the right thing, as the Speaker of the House, and the other side cannot stand it.

I want to tell my colleagues, I am proud of the Speaker. I am proud to be associated with him. I am proud to be part of his leadership team. He did not have to pay this reimbursement for legal services, but he has chosen to do that to set a new standard.

It seems to me when we have a Speaker of the House that is willing to set a standard in the House of Representatives, maybe a standard the White House could take a little information from, we ought to praise him.

I tell my colleagues it is time for the American people, who have helped us to come to this decision, to come back with us and mesh in a partnership, take back the agenda of this House, get the problems solved, the problems we know that are hurting America today, and get off this politicized ethics process. We need to get back to the work at hand.

I call for bipartisanship, I call for great praise of the Speaker of the House.

ATTACKS ON ATTORNEY GENERAL JANET RENO UNJUSTIFIED

(Mrs. KENNELLY of Connecticut asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. KENNELLY of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I will do exactly as the gentlewoman suggests. I rise today to speak out for an honest woman, our Attorney General, Janet Reno. We have continued to expect much of her and she continues to conduct herself with grace under pressure and courage under fire.

I understand that many are concerned about her decision not to seek a special prosecutor at this time and, of course, that is their right, but I must speak out against the unjustified attacks on the Attorney General's motives.

Janet Reno knew that her decision would be controversial, so she has relied on the advice of a universally well-regarded team of career attorneys. She has resisted pressure from both sides, declining to act hastily. She has not shut down the investigation, which continues. In short, she has not rushed to judgment, and neither should her critics.

We are indeed fortunate to have a woman of such integrity, an honest woman, leading our Department of Justice

SPEAKER GINGRICH TO COM-PENSATE TAXPAYERS FOR COST OF ETHICS INVESTIGATION

(Mr. BOB SCHAFFER of Colorado asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BOB SCHAFFER of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I am one of the freshmen here. I have been here on the job for 4 months, and I had hoped to come to Washington and deal with the matters that my constituents and the people of the country expect us to deal with, cutting taxes, providing tax relief, balancing the budget, returning authority back to the States, and doing things of a noble nature, noble causes.

Instead, I have come here and heard the other side berate our Speaker day after day and try to discredit the institution of Congress for what I consider to be, instead, a rather noble cause and a courageous response.

The Speaker taught a college course on American civilization and disclosed the terms of that course to the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, apparently not to the satisfaction of the committee. He reached an agreement, and in the process of that agreed to compensate the taxpayers for the cost of the hearings and the investigation.

He stood up to the task and he agreed to participate and to compensate the taxpayers: A courageous act. I ask the American people to contrast that act of courage with the cowardice that we have heard from those who would oppose the Speaker.

SPEAKER SHOULD NOT BE AP-PLAUDED FOR VIOLATING ETH-ICS LAWS OF HOUSE

(Ms. DELAURO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, I cannot believe what I am hearing today from my Republican colleagues. The Speaker brought discredit upon this House; he admitted that he lied to the Congress. Republicans are celebrating the fact that the gentleman from Georgia, NEWT GINGRICH, is paying a $300,000 fine for lying to Congress.

There is nothing to celebrate, my friends. The Speaker should not be applauded for violating the ethics law of this body. He should not be applauded for paying this fine after delaying for 4 months. Any American citizen would have had to pay that fine immediately.

The facts on his payment remain sketchy. Is it a loan or a $350,000 gift from the chief lobbyist of the tobacco industry? Let us not forget, let us not forget that the Speaker pled guilty. It is nothing to celebrate. It is, in fact, a sad day for the House of Representatives.

SPEAKER GINGRICH DID NOT LIE TO CONGRESS

(Mrs. FOWLER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. FOWLER. Mr. Speaker, I have to take umbrage with the comments from my good friend and colleague, the gentlewoman from Connecticut [Ms. DELAURO]. She is totally inaccurate. The Speaker did not lie to the American Congress.

The Committee on Standards of Official Conduct found that the Speaker broke no rules, broke no regulations. The only thing was that due diligence was not exercised in committee correspondence. That is all. This is a fact. Read through the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct finding.

This is a reimbursement for the expenses incurred by that committee, and I commend our Speaker. It is a courageous step he has taken today to accept full personal responsibility, reimbursing the expenses of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct out of his own personal funds. I think this is a great step for him to take. He has said as Speaker that he has the responsibility to do the right thing and to serve the American people responsibly.

Senator Bob Dole, who was given the Presidential Medal of Freedom by President Clinton, has stepped forward to help a friend. And Bob Dole is not a registered lobbyist, contrary to what the other side has been saying today. He is helping a friend.

So we all need to get together now and move forward and do the work the American people sent us here to this Congress to do.

CONGRESS SHOULD DO A BETTER JOB FOR THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, there is a need for us to do a much better job on behalf of the American people.

Monday, the Speaker of the House attacked the integrity of the Attorney General because she refused to appoint a special prosecutor, when it was clear that there were individuals with integrity in the Justice Department doing the right thing.

Then on Wednesday, in this House and in a committee, we provided for 350,000 children not to have food by voting against an increase in the WIC Program.

Now, on Thursday, we come today to find that Members have risen to the floor of the House to say that the Speaker has not violated any rules; that there is no problem with the way
